BANQUET.—The most enjoyable feature of the Rockcastle County Starting from this well known princi-Teacher's Institute was a magnificent banquet, given by Miss Ida May Adams on Tuesday evening, from 8 to 11 o'clock. It was one of those grand and beautiful occasions with which Mt. Vernon has always honored the teachers of this county. Early in the evening long lines of beautiful gowns leaning softly on strong arms, moved slowly toward that home of hospitality and kindness. The lawn was provided with easy chairs; the grass and flowers made the air fragrant and the surroundings beautiful. After chatting a while the teachers were highly entertained by a series of connundrums in which all took part. A picture guessing contest followed, in which Prof. J. W. Dinsmore of Berea, Drs. Edmiston and Philips, and won the prize, which was one years' Messrs. Johnson and Shepherd subscription to the Normal Instructor. A flowing bounty of delicious refreshments were then served. Secessity of Cleanliness. Fresh Air and Scalight to Procure the Best Renults-System to Le Used at Pan-

The Pan-American Exposition will prove to be of more genuine benefit to those interested in the proper care of live stock than any previous effort in this direction. Porter, of Bedford Ind fortunately some of the early examples large means, regardless of what the and at present holds a position with cost might be. As a result practical the I. S. R. Road of Ind. They farmers were slow to take the matter ed stable became at once associated with great expense

One object of Mr. F. A. Converse, who has charge of the live stock and dairy products at the Exposition, in building a model stable at the Exposition is to counteract this erroneous in-

A properly constructed stable is not necessarily an expensive one. Cleanliness, fresh air and sunlight, with a modulated temperature, may be obtained in a building of ordinary cheap construction if properly arranged.

A light, cheap framework covered with paper which is protected with a sheathing of very common boarding and covered with a good roof makes a very good start. This should stand on ground that is well drained and exposed to the sunlight, but protected from cold winds. The floor should be of cement and carefully designed to facilitate cleanliness in every particular. Double doors, fly screens and dark blinds should be provided and made to fit properly.

A system of ventilation should be provided that will ventilate. Anything will not do. By excluding the cold and the light ordinarily we also shut out the fresh air, without which no animal can thrive. Many stockmen are careful about the quality of the food, though careless about everything else bunch of steers from B. A. Riddle in connection with the stable. In this manner they are protecting their stock in one direction while leaving them ex-

Stable air is devitalized by passing through the lungs, it is also being contaminated by chemical decomposition of the excrementum as well as the fumes arising from the fermentation of damp bedding, etc. To thoroughly understand how to properly ventilate a stable it is necessary to study the circulation of air at changing temperatures, which is governed by fixed laws and may be easily understood. Warm air is lighter than cold air. Generally speaking, foul air is heavier than fresh pure air from the ple, ventilation should be arranged accordingly. Fresh air should be let in at the top and the foul air taken out at the bottom By experimenting we find if we CAPITAL STOCK smoke a cigar in the middle of a room the fresh air in, the other, the King system, draws the foul air out. As Mr. Converse prefers the latter, that is the system he will demonstrate at the Exposition. It consists of an air stack with a hood, the opening of which is turned away from the direction from which the wind is blowing. To this main air pipe are attached feeders from different parts of the stable. These feeders have slide openings to admit and carry off the foul air from near the floor at the sides of the stable. Fresh air is admitted through a central opening in the

As the draft that is created by the hooded stack is sufficient to draw the bottom air from the stable, fresh air must go down through the central opening to take its place, and a change of air is a certainty. To prevent the intake from striking the animals toe strong a shield is placed under the opening which assists in directing the flow of fresh atr along the ceiling. In this manner it mixes with the warm air that naturally rises in the center of the stable, and all is intermingled and diffused.

With a good stable well ventilated and good feed intelligently fed the winter care of stock should be profitable as well as pleasant.

Epidemics have no bad effects on such stock, and a visit from the board of health has no unpleasant consequences for the owner.
